39	James Roberson (i)	D	A+	YES	It is unfortunate that this legislation was not brought to the House Floor. Millions of lives are impacted and could address and support many citizens that are stricken the chronic health issues. It is my hope and my mission to have this legislation revisited with a successful passage in the upcoming Session.	YES	It is my hope and desire that we benchmark what the Governor of Maryland has done in addressing this issue. I will seek and/or support legislation that supports this effort in restoring lives of those with these minor offenses. It's simply the right thing to do as we know many of these offenders are those from stressed underserved communities and are often folks of color that are faced with these inequities and harsher penalties. 41	Matthew Laszacs	Libertarian	A+	YES	I support full legalization of cannabis for use by any adult, without any limitations on quantity or restrictions on use.	YES	There should be no penalties at all, criminal or civil. Drug prohibition has been the single largest policy failure in our country's history. It is impossible to prevent people from buying and using drugs. No matter how aggressively the government cracks down, drug use persists. As enforcement tactics become more severe, the harm to society escalates, until the enforcement itself becomes more violent and damaging than drug use—this is the current state of affairs in the United States. Despite overwhelming data showing the consistent failures of drug prohibition, the federal government continues to stumble forward in a foolish and quixotic effort that might be laughable were its effects on society, particularly on minorities, not so deeply revolting. Since the U.S. declared a "war" on drugs 53 years ago, drug use and overdose rates have not decreased, despite billions of taxpayer dollars spent, mass incarceration of large portions of the population, family destruction, and the decimation of entire communities. The iron law of prohibition has driven the rise of more potent and deadly drugs like fentanyl and nitazenes, fueling an overdose crisis of epidemic proportions—a completely avoidable disaster brought on by reckless government intervention. Wars cannot be waged against inanimate objects; it's time to acknowledge the war on drugs for what it truly is—a war on the American people. We must end this war and make peace with	Responded "yes" to MPP's 2024 survey questions, in support of allowing medical cannabis and reducing the penalty for simple possession to a civil fine. In his comments, went further — supporting removing all penalties.

Cannabis has made a life changing impact on me, my life, and I feel it's important to spread the message. You can most certainly heal from a plant, no big pharma needed.	Undecided	I believe in fines for such instances like underage use for example. But not to discipline folks who have found a natural plant that helps their quality of life.	Responded "yes" to 2024 MPP's survey question about allowing medical cannabis and "undecided" to our question about reducing penalties for possession to a civil fine.

90	Ken Badgett	D	A+	YES	I support the use of cannabis for medical use as recommended by a physician.	YES	As a baseline, i believe that a person should be 21 years of age to purchase cannabis and should not be able to purchase more that 4 ounces per transaction per day from a state-licensed distributor. Like alcohol, the irresponsible use of cannabis while driving or in other situations should remain illegal. Simple possession should not be criminal at any age. I would support drug counseling for anyone under age 18 who is found by law enforcement to be in simple possession of tobacco, cannabis, and alcohol.	Responded "yes" to MPP's 2024 survey questions, in support of allowing medical cannabis and reducing the penalty for simple possession to a civil fine.

94	Steve Moree	D	B+	YES	I understand that in some cases the use of marijuana can ease the pain of dying people. I would be in favor of medically prescribed marijuana use.	Undecided	After being a high school principal for 19 years I witnessed many young people get a "criminal record" because of small amounts of marijuana. I am willing to hear what other states have experienced when they legalized small amounts. I am open to discussion.	Responded "yes" to 2024 MPP's survey question about allowing medical cannabis and "undecided" to our question about reducing penalties for possession to a civil fine.
