

S.C. Medical Cannabis Voter Guide

General Election — Tuesday, November 8, 2022

State House of Representatives

Tuesday, November 8 is Election Day for the South Carolina House of Representatives and several other races. The election will be critical for determining whether South Carolina will finally enact a compassionate medical cannabis law in 2023.

We've put together a voter guide that shows where S.C. House of Representative candidates stand on medical cannabis. It includes responses to Sensible South's candidate questionnaire, along with information on whether incumbents cosponsored medical cannabis bills and their past votes.

If you speak to a candidate about medical cannabis and get new information that we have not included, inform us at jillswing2@gmail.com.

If you're a registered voter, you may find your state legislative districts and precinct location with the South Carolina Elections Commission. After you complete your information, the second section will be your Voting Districts. The relevant district for this primary is "SC House District." You can also see everything that's on your ballot on Ballotpedia's sample ballot webpage.

If you qualify to vote, but are not yet registered, you can register online, by mail, or in person 30 days before Election Day. The SC Secretary of State's website has more information about who can register to vote and how.

State legislative races have been so close some have tied. Don't miss out on this chance to determine who represents you in Columbia. You may also wish to volunteer for or contribute to the candidates of your choice.

S.C. State House of Representatives 2022 Medical Cannabis Voter Guide

Here are the questions asked in the Sensible South candidate questionnaire:

- 1) Would you support a narrowly crafted bill (similar to S. 150) to allow South Carolinians with serious illnesses to use and safely access medical cannabis if their physician has recommended that course of treatment?
- 2) If you are elected, would you work to ensure a medical cannabis bill gets a House floor vote on its merits in 2023?
